Missouri Good Roads Convention. The Missouri Good Roads association held its annual session at St. Louis. The attendance was very large, and owing to the presence of delegates to the "National Good Roads Parliament," many men of national reputation were seen in the convention hall. Three amendments to the state constitution, all tending to increase the taxing power for road improvement purposes, were drafted, and will be recommended to the legislature. The amendments may be submitted to the people at the fall election in 1900.

submitted to the people at the fall election in 1900.

One of the most interesting facts in relation to good roads was brought out by Maj. M. Meigs, a civil engineer of Keokuk, Ia., that crude coal oil will keep roads in good condition. It costs 90 cents per barrel, and one barrel will maintain a piece of road 12 feet by 100 feet for one year. The earth holds the oil, and where oil is water must depart. The oll creates a dry crust.

oil is water must depart. The oil creates a dry crust.

The claim was made during the convention that the various counties in the state were already expending $1,000,000 a year on the public highways, and that a goodly part of this sum was "sunk in the mud." Estimates are wide apart as to what it will cost to provide Missouri with a reasonably good system of highways. Some place the amount at $250,000,000. There is no data to go by, and even those who venture to make estimates say they may be very wild. The increased tax proposed, state and local, would doubtless posed, state and local, would doubtless amount to about $5,000,000 a year, should it all be collected.

Some of the delegates thought that the legislature should pass a law imposing a poll tax of $2 on all voters. This measure will be presented to the legislature, they say. Such a law would increase the revenue about $600,000 a year.

Broke the Record Again.

St. Louis is repeating history again. Its bank clearances in November, 1898, broke all monthly records in the annals of the city. They amounted to $139,362,353. The biggest month heretefore in clearances in St. Louis was December, 1897, when the total was $132,614,053.
